George Rosenfeld Center for Recovery

Treatment & Wellness Services for Older Adults

Odyssey House

Where recovery gets real

If you're an older adult struggling with drugs and alcohol, you're not alone. In fact, a U.S. health agency estimates that 4.4 million baby boomers and older will suffer from a substance use disorder by 2020.

Because the challenges you face are often unique, we created an ElderCare program—a NYC drug and alcohol rehab program designed for the special needs of men and women 55 years old and above.

Some of our clients have tried to hide their addiction their whole lives. Others turned to drugs or alcohol in the face of later-life challenges—from losing jobs or spouses to dealing with the physical pain and loneliness of getting older.

However your life got off track, the George Rosenfeld Center for Recovery will help you find a better way forward. As part of our ElderCare residential program, you'll live and work with older New Yorkers like you who have said enough is enough. Family members are encouraged to participate in group sessions, seminars and other therapeutic activities with you.

Once you complete your program, we'll work with you to find transitional or permanent housing. And you can always depend on Odyssey House for peer-group support and outpatient services to help you maintain the life you desire —without drugs or alcohol.

The George Rosenfeld Center for Recovery is a multi-generational behavioral health treatment center for women, families, and older adults.
